PIONEER

Hill had had sufficient success in the region to be seized with a consuming desire to purchase the defunct property. After five years of financial dickerings, including the sale of all his other interests, which netted a fortune of $100,000, he and a syndicate of three others—Sir Donald A. Smith, George Stephen, and Norman W. Kittson, obtained the object of this desire.

The St. Paul, Minnesota and Manitoba railway was formed to operate the property, with Hill as general manager. When in 1883 Mr. Hill was elected president he undertook the extension of the road from its Dakota and Minnesota home-stead to the Pacific ocean. He was confronted by three great competitors to the south, each of which had received big bonuses as government aid, whereas the "Manitoba" or the Great Northern, as it came to be known, did not have a dollar of government subsidy or an acre of grant to forward its progress from the Minnesota boundary to the sea.

In this light, Hill's plan was widely deemed pure folly, but he pressed it to conclusion by building and populating as he built. For several years he laid rails westward at the rate of a mile a day, and at a cost of $30 a mile, and as he went he left a trail of embryonic farms by the railroad.

With the line to Puget Sound once laid, he turned Empire Builder. He introduced the live stock industry into the country, and by grass plains, and developed them by importing blooded stock; he sent demonstration trains through the country with men who showed the people how to raise more wheat to the acre; he made an outlet for the grain by establishing a cheap rate by rail and steamship to Buffalo where he built great elevators; in fact for upwards of 20 years he left nothing in his power undone to develop the country where he had staked out his claim as the great common carrier.

But at the Pacific tide-water he was not satisfied for he saw in the Orient still further opportunities. He organized a fleet of Pacific steamships for the commercial invasion of Japan and China. Japan at the time wanted steel rails, but proposed getting them from England, as the rates were less. It is related that when John W. Gates, the steel magnate of Chicago, came to Hill with the proposition of getting American rails to Japan, the latter replied:

"I will make you a rate of $8 a ton from Chicago or Pittsburgh to Yokohama. If that is too much, I will carry it for the axle grease used on the locomotives and freight cars; and if you can't stand that, I will carry your freight for nothing."

At the $8 rate named, the American manufacturer was enabled to secure the Japanese contract. The same tactics were adopted in getting American wheat and flour into Japan and China, where rice was the staple food.

His faith in the Far East was rewarded as liberally as that in the Northwest. It is estimated that the Pacific fleet now carries nearly $50,000,000 worth of products to the Orient every year.

While Mr. Hill built up for himself and his associates an immense fortune, he also helped to create for the settlers along his lines a wealth of over five billion dollars in real property, which is represented by the farm value of the 400,000 farms and their 65,000,000 acres of improved land.

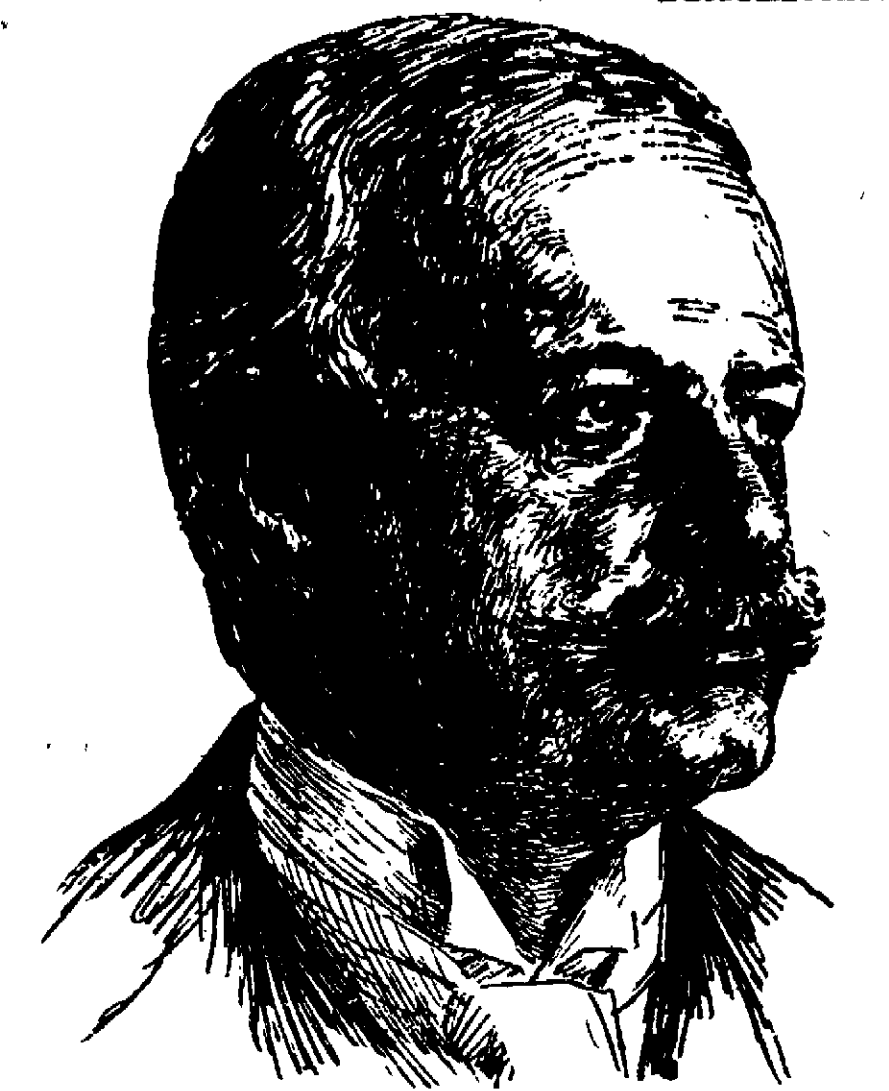

Upon his retirement at 69, the "streak of rust" he had bought 30 years before, had expanded to more than 6,000 miles and it was carrying gross profits of more than $68,000,000 a year, and carrying 15,000,000 tons of freight annually. He still retained a hand in the Great Northern's policy as chairman of the board of directors while his son Louis, who had worked up from the humblest position of his father's railroad became president.

The secret of the Hill success was not secret at all, according to Mr. Hill, and he had no real recipes to offer. "The man with the opportunity today," he said, "is the man in the ranks." But the secret of failure he frequently declared to be extravagance. He regarded this as a national tendency, against which he strongly set himself, particularly as concerned the natural resources.

PRINCE WHO MAY VISIT U. S. IS ONE OF THE GREATEST OF GERMAN STATESMEN

Prince von Buelow.

Prince von Buelow, who according to unconfirmed reports is to visit the United States soon, is one of the shrewdest statesmen in all Germany. His most trying task was his attempt to keep Italy from entering the war against her former allies. That he may have been more successful in his efforts than appears on the surface, it is said by some critics, is shown by the fact that Italy has never declared war on Germany.

the Great Northern system. Mr. Hill oversaw almost every detail, to the wonder of all employees with whom he came in contact. A tentative instance of his recognition in his own country is the story of a tourist who declares that there are about in the Swedish section of the Northwest upwards of 10,000 different stories in Swedish dialect with "Yem Hill" as the centerpiece. Patrons of his lines have liked and disliked him in rapid alternation, for it was his point to have his way, not only where his road should run, but where his patrons should settle. This was part of his economic policy. He carried out a singular regularity in the location of branch lines, giving a minimum of short lines on which light trains were unavoidable. The principal text of his railway gospel was low grades, heavy power, large capacity cars, and big train loads on his main lines, and he began to preach this at a time when these things were held as visionary by most railway men.

In contact with the late E. H. Harriman, who outdid him in the extent of railway ownership, Mr. Hill was not only the financial head, but the practical head, of his great railway system. He was the chief promoter and president of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern under one ownership, to which such opposition developed that a suit was brought in the United States circuit court, which decided that the acquisition was an illegal combination—affirmed in March, 1904, by the United States supreme court.

For several years James J. Hill had been in the habit of insisting, both to his friends and to the public, that he was not actively engaged in business.

Just how active he was during the last two years of his life can be judged only by little evidence of his master hand in questions affecting the Great Northern railroad and the First National Bank of St. Paul and by three outstanding accomplishments in which his will and genius asserted themselves.

From a world viewpoint it would be hard to say whether his staunch support of the Belgian people, following the invasion of the Germans or the part played in the negotiations for the $500,000,000 loan to the allied governments is the more important.

From the time the work of succoring the Belgians began, Mr. Hill took a leading part in the movement. It probably never will be known how much money he sent to King Albert, an old personal friend, and how much he induced others to send.

His claim to being the original advocate of livestock development in the northwest is unquestioned.

SORROW IN NEW YORK
OVER DEATH OF HILL; DOMINANT IN "STREET"

New York, May 29.—The news of the death of the man who for two decades has been a dominant personality in the financial community, was received in Wall street today with many expressions of sorrow and a feeling of almost personal loss, for James J. Hill had not only many intimate friends among the foremost financiers, but was a familiar and popular figure with Wall Street workers.

The financier's death did not cause the slightest disturbance in the stock market. The Hill stocks, Great Northern, and Northern Pacific were virtually inactive.

Mr. Hill was famous in the financial community for his quaint humor and his conservative, though optimistic views of general conditions throughout the country, which were almost invariably sought every time he visited "the Street."

Mr. Hill's advice and influence were eagerly sought last fall by the banking syndicate which floated the $500,000,000 Anglo-French war issues. His connections with all classes of people in the west and northwest made him a powerful factor in the successful consummation of that unprecedented undertaking. Mr. Hill was outspoken in his championship of the allies.

Local officials of the Hill roads are expected to leave today to attend the funeral. It is also likely that representatives of the big New York banking houses will attend the funeral.

Why "Anuric" is an INSURANCE Against Sudden Death.

Before an Insurance Company will take a risk on your life the examining physician will test the urine and report whether you are a good risk. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or the twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism and gout. The urine is often cloudy, full of sediment; channels often get sore and sleep is disturbed two or three times a night. This is the time you should consult some physician of wide experience—such as Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Send him 10 cents for sample package of his new discovery, "Anuric." Write him your symptoms and send a sample of urine for test.

"Anuric" is the most powerful agent in dissolving uric acids, as hot water melts sugar; besides being absolutely harmless, it is endowed with other properties, for it preserves the kidneys in a healthy condition by thoroughly cleansing them. Being so many times more active than lithia, it clears the heart valves of any sandy substances which may clog them and checks the degeneration of the blood-vessels, as well as regulating blood pressure. "Anuric" is a regular insurance and life-saver for all big meat eaters and those who deposit lime-salts in their joints. Ask the druggist for "Anuric" put up by Dr. Pierce, in 50-cent packages.

STRENGTH AND BEAUTY

Come with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This is a blood cleanser and alterative that starts the liver and stomach into vigorous action. It thus assists the body to manufacture red blood which feeds the heart, nerves, brain and organs of the body. The organs work smoothly like machinery running in oil. You feel clean, strong and vigorous instead of tired, weak and faint.

BIG KENNEDY SHOWS OPEN HERE TODAY

The Con T. Kennedy shows, which will exhibit here all this week under the auspices of the Woodmen of the World arrived in Newark late last night, but in a short time everything was unloaded and the attractions will be open to the public promptly at 7 o'clock this evening. The Kennedy shows came here directly from Dayton, where they enjoyed excellent business, and received the praise of the press and public. It is the largest show of its kind in the business, and enjoys an excellent reputation for clean, meritorious attractions. The shows are located on the big lot at Eleventh and Jefferson streets, within easy walking distance of the business section.

The Woodmen's jubilee will be formally opened with a parade this evening. The pageant will leave the show grounds at 6:30 o'clock, traverse the principal streets and return to the lot in time for the opening of the show. The Kennedy band will head the parade and it is a real band which all should hear. Members of the Woodmen of the World and Kennedy performers in costume will be in the line of march and there will be the steam and air calliopes to help make things interesting, and also horses, camels and donkeys.

Among the attractions brought here by the Kennedy shows are the Garden of Allah, auto circus, miracle days of '49, wild west show, Doc Turner's wonders, samar (Siamese) twins, French mid-air rag time village, Coney Island side show, submarine, athletic show, Essie Fay's society horse show, whiff, Ferris wheel and carousal.

DEATH IN AUTO

Coroner W. J. Jackson of this city was summoned and viewed the body of Mr. Miller and gave permission for its removal to Zanesville.

Howard Adams, had a narrow escape from a collision. He was following in the mud with one of the car resting on an arm of the other wheel on his back. Adams was freed from the weight of the car when he was thrown for some time. He most painful injury is a bruise about the thigh although he has numerous other contusions.

Mrs. Adams sustained a fracture of the left wrist and was badly bruised. Miss Ruth Miller escaped with only a slight scratch upon the hand and minor bruises. The index finger of the right hand was injured and is badly swollen. Mr. Shrigley was injured about the left thigh and sustained a painful cut across the nose. Shryock sustained several slight bruises. None of the injuries is expected to prove serious.

The injured were taken into the home and physicians summoned from this city. Bradley's ambulance driven by Cliff Steward made a fast run to the scene of the accident and after the injured had been attended to the ambulance took the body of Mr. Miller and two of the injured people to Zanesville.

Mr. Robert Campbell, ex-district tax assessor, who lives in the near vicinity, took the other members of the Miller party to their homes in Zanesville.

The fatal accident is attributed to the failure of the driver of a small car to give sufficient room to the approaching Miller car to pass and interference on the part of Prof. Miller in an effort to aid his daughter, Miss Ruth, in steering the car after the wheels had gone off the concrete roadway. The combined efforts of the two at the steering wheel caused the machine to swerve sharply across the road and to finally completely overturn. That any of the party escaped death is considered miraculous.

"It happened so suddenly that it all seems blank now," said Mr. Shryock, last night. "I remember being in the machine while it was turning and of the dust flying all about and the fact that I saw one foot on the running board as if I was just going to step from the car. Mrs. Adams was standing in the road and Mr. Shrigley was held securely in the wreckage of the top. He was calling for help but in some manner he was able to free himself. I went to Mr. Miller's side, found him dead and lifted him out."

The driver of the automobile which the Miller car attempted to pass when the accident occurred, stopped and came back to see the extent of the mishap, but when he saw that Prof. Miller was dead, he returned to his machine without offering assistance and drove rapidly away before his identity was learned.

Following the accident a number of residents of Jacksonville, neighboring farmers, physicians from Newark and neighboring towns and automobile drivers rendered aid to the injured. After the wounds were dressed they were taken to Zanesville in automobiles, where their injuries were given further attention.

Mr. Miller was one of Zanesville's best known and most successful musicians. For forty years he was a teacher of piano and organ and for twenty-five years was organist in churches here. He was a native of England but came to America at an early age with his parents and had since made Zanesville his home. He is survived by his aged mother, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Miller, by his widow and three daughters, Mrs. Howard Adams and the Misses Ruth and Dorothy Miller of the home and by two brothers and one sister, Mrs. James

Why We Are Opposing A Government Armor Plant

TO THE PEOPLE:

Some people say that the very fact that the Bethlehem Steel Company is so aggressively fighting the proposal to build a Government armor plant is conclusive proof that the Company is seeking to assure for itself the "vast profits" derived from private manufacture.

The Fact is That Armor Making is the Least Profitable Feature of Steel Manufacture.

The reason we oppose a Government plant is very simple. It is this:

Even though there is but little profit in the making of armor, we have invested over $7,000,000 in our armor plant;

That plant is useless for any other purpose; if a Government plant is built the usefulness of our plant is destroyed.

It would be good business for us to make armor for the Government at any price over and above the actual shop cost, RATHER THAN SACRIFICE OUR ENTIRE INVESTMENT.

We do not seek to save big profits; our purpose is very frankly to save our armor plant—built solely for the use of the Government—from going to the scrap heap.

To do that, we are prepared to agree for any period to any terms of manufacture which the Federal Trade Commission shall say absolutely protects the Government of the United States.

EUGENE G. GRACE, President.

CLUB HOUSE IS RANSACKED BY THIEVES

The Gibson Club house opposite Buckeye Lake Park, was entered by thieves either Friday or Saturday night and a new rain coat and sweater together with a pair of shoes belonging to James Fitzgerald of this city were stolen.

The provost next paid their attention to the kitchen and carried off every dish and knife and fork on the place. The only thing left was a couple of broken dishes. All of the cooking utensils were also stolen. The loss will total $75.

Only a couple of weeks ago the cottage of Joe Green on the north shore was entered and property to the value of $100 was carried away. The state is well paid for its leases and licensees and residents along the lake are entitled to better police protection than is furnished at the present time.

FRATERNITY

IN ITS BROADEST MEANING,
SUBJECT OF GOVERNOR
WILLIS' ADDRESS.

Organizations Practicing Scriptural
Charity Exercise an Influence for Moral Progress.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)

Mingo, Junction, O., May 29.—Fraternal organizations exert an influence "in favor of law and order and moral progress, and they are a powerful aid in support of those charged with the administration of public affairs," declared Gov. Frank B. Willis in an address here yesterday at a Memorial service of several fraternal organizations.

"One of the influences that is written large in the evolution of modern civilization is expressed in the word 'fraternity,'" declared the governor.

"It has been left to the last half century to work out large results through organizations that unite men, without regard to creed or party, in fraternal effort for the practice of the virtue of charity—charity in the broad scriptural sense, the love of mankind. The principles of toleration and liberty of opinion were written into our constitution—state and nation—it has remained for the fraternal organizations to vitalize these principles and make them actual living realities."

The speaker said the basic principles of the various fraternal organizations are worthy of universal approval and teach good citizenship and loyalty to the flag.

"We are here to cherish the memory of friends and brothers and to realize that in our lives they have an abiding place and an influence that survives the grave," said Mr. Willis.

PRESENCE OF A MERICAN
TROOPS IN MEXICO WILL BE LAID BEFORE PERSHING.

General Gavia Has Not Set Time for Proposed Conference Announced for This Week.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)

Columbus, N. M., May 29.—No word has been received from Gen. Gavia regarding the fixing of a date for the conference between the latter and General John J. Pershing, announced to be held this week near Colonia Dublan. As General Pershing is understood to have selected a spot near Colonia Dublan for the meeting, the time, it is said, has been left to the Mexican leader.

It is believed that Gen. Gavia is in communication with General Carranza receiving instructions as to the propositions to be laid before Gen. Pershing, which will have to do more or less with the present dispositions of American troops in Chihuahua.

It is expected Gen. Gavia will remind General Pershing that the further presence of American troops in Mexico, now that one of the chief bandit leaders, Candelaria Cervantes is dead and his forces scattered is unnecessary and that until the troops are withdrawn demonstrations against the American troops are inevitable.

According to information received here today south of the American line in territory recently evacuated by General Pershing's columns.

ENGLISH COMMENT PRESIDENT WILSON'S PEACE PROPOSAL

London, May 29.—"Irresponsible peace talk received its quietus from Sir Edward Grey last week, but no doubt President Wilson's speech before the League to Enforce Peace will revive the discussion in certain quarters," says the Liverpool Post.

"It is definitely in certain particular respects, perhaps, that the president gives to some of his phrases may seem elusive."

The Manchester Guardian says: "The president inevitably has confined himself to cautious and general terms but it is impossible to miss the significance of his declaration that the United States would be ready to become a party to any feasible league of nations. Twenty-one months of war have done much to undermine even the rooted American aversion from alliance and leagues."

The Westminster Gazette considers President Wilson's declaration that the United States is willing to become a partner in any feasible association of nations as a momentous one and asserts that Great Britain's record for a century is an endorsement of his suggestion for establishing the security of the highways of the seas. It adds that if the President means seapower in war is to be reduced or limited in such a way as to "deprive us of our principal weapon and means of defense we should naturally have a good deal to say on that subject. But the association of nations to prevent war has the hearty assent of this influential newspaper which says that if the President's speech can be taken as a declaration of the adhesion of the United States to this idea, it has high significance; for it brings the United States definitely into world politics and makes her from hence forth one of the nations that must be reckoned with in any scheme of international relations."

STATE FAIR WAS HELD HERE 62 YEARS AGO

Editor of The Advocate:

A recent issue of the Advocate contained a reference to the fact that at one time—in 1854—the State Fair was held at Newark, and that certificates of award to Ball & Ward are on exhibition in a store window of your city.

I have in my office a lithographed advertisement of the Fair, 21x27 inches, varnished and mounted on a wooden frame. It consists of a panoramic view of the grounds, showing the mounds, buildings, and people in carriages and on foot, and the interesting letterpress following:

"Views of the Ohio State Fair Grounds, 1854, showing the Ancient Embankments, as prepared for the Fifth Annual Fair of the Ohio State Agricultural Society, under the management of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, to be held at Newark from Tuesday to Friday 19th to 22nd of September."

"This view has been got up as an index for visitors to all parts of the grounds, and the artist in order to render it still more intelligible has introduced figures in their respective places. Railroads throughout the state have agreed to carry visitors at half fare, and those roads leading toward Newark will carry stock and articles for exhibition free. Ample arrangements are made for accommodating a larger concourse of exhibitors and visitors than have yet congregated on a similar occasion, and all within an hour's ride of the Fair grounds. Trains will run to accommodate. Visitors can rely upon these arrangements, and their necessary expenses for boarding in private families or where they see fit to spend the night at Zanesville, Mt. Vernon, Mansfield, Columbus, Granville, or with the farmers of Licking need not exceed $1.25 to $1.75 per day. Committees will be appointed to give information to visitors where accommodations can be had."

"State Board of Agriculture 1854: R. W. Musgrave, president. Crawford Co.; Jos. Sullivan, treasurer, Columbus; Jas. L. Cox, recording secretary, Zanesville; Members: Jas. T. Worthington, Chillicothe; Wm. H. Ladd, Richmond; R. W. Steele, Dayton; Jno. K. Green, Carthage; D. McIntosh, Portage Co.; J. G. Gest, Green Co.; B. Stedem, Cleveland." Respectfully,

CLEVELAND COUNCIL
MAY TRANSFER A SITE
FOR PUBLIC LIBRARY.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)

Columbus, May 29.—The Supreme Court of Ohio today upheld the Court of Appeals of Cuyahoga county in its decision that the Cleveland council was authorized to transfer the City Hall site and the Cleveland Gas company property east of it to the trustees of the public library, for the erection of a $2,000,000 library. Action seeking to restrain the council was brought by J. N. Stockwell, former city solicitor, while he was in office.

The court of appeals refused to issue a restraining order against the transfer and the case was appealed.

NEURALGIA'S ONE SYMPTOM

Neuralgia is a disease which has but one symptom—pain.

The pain of neuralgia is sharp and shooting with intervals of freedom.

An attack of neuralgia does not give immunity but recurrences are the rule. The same nerve is generally affected which means that this particular nerve has lost its resistance and that there will be recurring attacks until the strength of the nerve is built up.

How can the strength of a nerve be restored? The nerves are nourished entirely by the blood and weak nerves are toned up by supplying to the blood the elements that the nerves lack. As the general health and strength of the system are built up the nerves resume their normal functions. Inflammation caused by lack of nutrition disappears and the neuralgia attacks cease.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic exceptionally well suited for the treatment of neuralgia, because they contain no alcohol, stimulating or habit-forming drugs. The tonic treatment with these pills is well worth a trial by any sufferer from neuralgia.

Write today for booklet on nervous disorders to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist will tell you the pills or you will be sent postpaid on 50 cents per box.

What the Veterans Gave.

Regret is often expressed that the exercises of the national Memorial Day attract so little attendance and attention. A pessimist remarks that a parade of callow soldier boys of 1916 in the spick and spandy uniforms would attract a much larger crowd. Yet these youths are mere raw recruits who have had no baptism of fire. But they represent the forward look. The men who wore the Blue or the Gray represent a past age and the backward vision. History and those who stand for it are set aside in this hurrying age.

Yet it is not always possible to gauge popular interest merely by attendance at public exercises. Poor church attendance does not mean that the people are ready to give up religious worship. The Memorial Day observances are about the same thing year after year, and our restless people demand novelties.

Public appreciation is always tardy. But the luster of soldierly deeds of '61 is bound to increase. Great societies will grow up of men and women glad to claim descent from soldier blood. Records will be searched to prove this distinction.

When the old soldiers are asked to address school children, the youngsters always seem thrilled by their simply told tales of heroism. The public gratitude to these men is warmer than they or their friends realize. When one of them dies, the fact of his soldierly service is the one thing the newspapers emphasize the most.

Dry Rot In the Army.

Lieut. Col. George Montgomery, commander of the Frankford arsenal at Philadelphia, in a recent address condemned promotion in the army by seniority. He declared it the cause of dry rot. No great harm may be done so long as the force is busy at its usual tasks of keeping the army post grounds in order. But if we some day run up against a first class fighting machine, a price will be paid.

No business would live five years if promotion was made dependent on seniority. Such a rule puts the stopper on ambition, and make a man feel as if he owned his job and had a mortgage on the one above him. Business success depends on picking the best talent, young or old, and giving it the chance to express itself. "The tools to him who can use them" is a vital old French proverb.

Ambitious men, sure of their powers and capable of high efficiency, must find army conditions discouraging. They want to achieve success by creating it themselves, not by

The Town Beautiful Movement

There is too much of the spirit to-day of "let George do it." There is too little willingness to take hold and co-operate personally in attempts at civic improvement.

The pioneers made their place beautiful by getting out with spade and watering pot, and planting whole rows of trees along the streets. They were amply repaid, in enjoyment of the beauty they created, and in better value of real estate. Nowadays this is left to public officials and consequently is neglected. Instead of getting out themselves and planting trees, citizens will call up the service director and ask him why he does not set out something on their streets.

Improvements that have to wait on public funds wait long. The appropriation is usually exhausted, and politicians see other uses for money. Neatness is not exactly beauty, but there can be no beauty without neatness. Every piece of paper set adrift, every heap of rubbish, lowers the tone of a town, and helps create the spirit of disorder. People are governed by the influence of neighbors. If one man cleans up and paints up, the spirit of improvement sweeps through the whole street. If he lets things go ragged, his neighbors fall easily into the slovenly habit of letting well enough alone.

Town beauty is not created by elaborate mansions or choicely designed business blocks. It is made by the transplanting and careful tending of green foliage and flowers within town limits, by elimination of eye sores, by good taste in building, and removal of disorder. Newark has done much along this line, but there are many things to be achieved to enable it fully to realize the ideal of the Town Beautiful. One thing that will help will be to put the trash cans in order and then take care of them. Another help would be to stop placing advertising bills and banners on the telephone poles and the trolley guy wires in the down town district.

"Safety First" Irks.

(Pittsburgh Gazette Times.)
If it were made certain that any person who boarded or attempted to board a moving car would be sent to jail for ten days, a dangerous practice would be stopped instantly. But when he risks only his limbs or u. s. life, man will take a chance. This peculiarity is strikingly illustrated in a petition of the Long Island railroad to the New York Up-State Public Service Commission for permission to run its trains with open vestibules as a means of saving life. The statement was made that "more accidents have occurred to persons trying to board trains getting under way since the road has been using the closed vestibule type of car than in the days when the steps and platforms were not enclosed." And the spokesman for the railroads gave examples of men trying to get on after the doors had been closed and the train started.

The closed vestibule was adopted as a measure of safety. Patrons of the road regard it as an interference with their rights. All danger would be obviated were they to get to the stations before the scheduled minute for their train to start. But they linger and make a flying leap at the moving platform, trusting to luck to land safely on the step. The situation presents a serious question for the service commission to decide. But there ought to be no hesitancy about making the right answer to the petition of the Long Island road. To rescind the existing rule might save some accidents, but it would be an invitation to even more persons to take a chance and would defeat the very purpose of the requirement that closed vestibules be used. Man must be saved from himself. "Safety first" is a principle that must be insisted upon, not sidestepped.

That the most important species of palm is the date palm? The stem, which is straight and simple, reaches a height of from thirty to sixty feet and bears a head of pointed leaves from eight to ten feet long and a number of branching spadices each of which on the female tree bears in general 180-200 fruits. A Composition on the Nose

Written for The Newark Advocate.
(Copyright Applied For.)

The Nose is a two cylinder device usually worn on the front of the face and when not out of business on account of defective flues, is used for smelling and breathing. In case the draft is cut off the mouth is used for breathing and smelling has to be postponed until the conduit system is clear.

Outside of Newark the largest nose on record belongs to the Sphinx, but the weather has pretty near wiped it away. Aside from giving him a minus appearance of the face it makes no particular difference as there is nothing to smell in his locality except camels and who wants to smell a camel?

The first thing a family does after a child is born is to commence to worry about what kind of a nose it will have. The mother hopes secretly that it won't be like its father's and the father has the same misgivings. If the child's nose has

This important feature of the face is stationary with the exception of those belonging to small boys and they run all over their faces. The worst enemies of the nose are Limburger cheese, asafetide, onions, fertilizer factories and three for five cent cigars.

When War Stops.

Before the war a merchant ship could be built for $90 a ton and now it costs $155 a ton. There is $65 difference. What is to become of that when the war closes? This concrete example reaches to all phases of industry and business. The relation between production and consumption will be seriously disturbed for awhile, but they will in the end assume the old level, possibly through some medium of exchange magic. But former conditions are to change quickly and that $65 will be withdrawn from the market, both the consumer and the producer suffering alike their loss. But the transition has its perils, for it means a reduction of wages and the forced payment of debts. We are all wishing for the end of the war. Maybe we will not be all pleasant. Maybe we will have to give up our lobster and chicken breasts.—Ohio State Journal.

Superstitions About Fowls.

Diviners of East Africa perform divination by killing a fowl and sprinkling its blood on or near the threshold, "a practice most frequently observed when a chief has fallen seriously ill." It is a far cry from Uganda to the shores of Scotland, but here is an incident that runs the Uganda custom close enough, surely. In a certain place which does not consider itself less enlightened than similar communities of its size a friend was one day suddenly asked by a woman, a neighbor (whose son, a young lad, had fallen down in a fit, to run for a doctor. This he promptly did, and, returning before the arrival of the doctor, was pleased to see the lad had come to in the interval, and said so to the mother. "Yes," she replied, "but what a pity we hadn't a live cock to bury in the garden." Not only so, but my friend, on expressing his surprise to another party, was shown a garden quite close where a live fowl had been buried on a precisely similar occasion, thus testifying to a more general belief in the efficacy of such a charm than could be imagined.—London Tit-Bits.

YOUNGEST OF 117 GRADUATES

MISS ELIZABETH HAZLETT.

MISS ELEANOR JOHNSON.

Among the 117 members of this year's graduating class of the Newark High school, are two rivals for the honor of being the youngest graduates to receive a diploma. Both are daughters of prominent Newark families, with but three months difference in their ages.

Miss Elizabeth Hazlett, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Calvin G. Hazlett, 363 Hudson avenue, is the younger of the two girls, being 16 years old July 4, 1915. Miss Eleanor Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest T. Johnson, 408 Hudson avenue, 16 years old October 13, 1915. She is the second youngest member of the class. The young ladies are to be highly commended for the rapid progress in completion of their high school careers, as the average graduating age is, according to school officials, 18 years. Both girls attribute their early graduation to careful study, combined with plenty of recreation.

While Miss Hazlett receives the honor of being the youngest graduate of the largest class ever turned out by the local school, Miss Johnson's name will go down on the school annals as one of the best debaters of the class of 1916. She won much praise from the faculty by her excellent work during the recent debate with the Zanesville school, which was won by Newark High.

Chronometers Aboard Ship.

A ship's chronometer is the most wonderful and accurate timekeeper made, for upon its accuracy depend the lives of all on board. So accurate, indeed, is a ship's chronometer that it does not vary a second a day. An error of only a few seconds may put a captain of a vessel miles out of his reckoning at sea and run the ship into great danger. For that reason every ship's timepiece goes through the most thorough tests before it is pronounced perfect. It is set going in a very hot room and then transferred to a cold one, for it may be used in any part of the world, from the polar regions to the tropics, and it must always keep good time.

Most large vessels have three chronometers on board in case of accident, and whenever a vessel goes into port they are sent on shore and tested to see if they are still accurate. On board ship the chronometer is kept amidships, because there are the least motion and the smallest variation of temperature.

Granville, O., May 29.—Granville will celebrate Memorial Day tomorrow with fresh zeal and with an impressiveness worthy the occasion. Denison university will suspend classes which will permit the students to unite with the veterans and townspeople in this tribute to the patriots of the past. A new and attractive service is arranged for the forenoon beginning at 9:30 in which students assisted by the members of the Grand Army and citizens will show their loyalty to the flag. R. by faculty and students, flag raising by a committee of veterans and an address. This forenoon's exercise will not detract in any way from the regular memorial service to be held in the opera house in the afternoon at 1:30—for in this latter service all gather to do honor to the soldier boys who have gone and to those who remain. It is the chief feature of the day to which the whole community is cordially invited. Denison university has a special interest in the address this year which is to be delivered by Rev. Lawrence A. SYNOPSIS

MARY PAGE, an actress, is accused of the murder of James Pollock, and is defended by her lover Philip Langdon. Pollock has been pursuing Mary for many months endeavoring to win her love and her hand in marriage, but his attentions have been very unwelcome to her. Knowing her stage aspirations, he has, unknown to her, financed her starring tour under the management of Daniels. On the night of the murder, Mary leaves the banquet hall in the Hotel Republic and enters the Gray Room alone expecting to meet Langdon. She has been lured there by Pollock, who has been drinking. A few moments later a shot is heard and Langdon and others, upon entering the Gray Room find James Pollock shot through the heart and Mary Page lying in a faint beside him with Pollock's revolver not six inches from the ends of her fingers. At Mary's trial she admits she had the revolver. Pollock had invaded her dressing room at the theatre, Langdon had come to her rescue, the revolver had been knocked from Pollock's hand and Mary had seized and retained it. She had put it in her hand bag the night of the murder intending giving it to Langdon. Her maid testifies that Mary threatened Langdon with it previously, and Mary's leading man implicates Langdon. How Mary disappeared from the scene of the crime is a mystery. Brandon tells of a strange hand print he saw on Mary's shoulder. Further evidence shows that horror of drink produces temporary insanity in Mary. The defense is "repressed psychosis." Witnesses described Mary's flight from her intoxicated father and her father's suicide. Nurse Walton describes the kidnapping of Mary by Pollock, and Amy Barton tells of Mary's struggles to become an actress, of Pollock's pursuit of her and of another occasion when the smell of liquor drove Mary insane. There is evidence that Daniels, Mary's manager, threatened Pollock. Mary faints on the stand and again goes insane when a policeman offers her whisky. Daniels testifies that Pollock threatened to kill Mary and Langdon and actually attempted to kill Langdon. Two witnesses describe Mary's flight to the street from the hotel and her abduction by men from a gambling place near by. Further evidence seems to incriminate Daniels. Maggie Hale, inmate of a gambling den, testifies that she was at the hotel and heard two men quarreling in the Gray Room a short time before the murder. Her evidence seems to increase suspicion against Daniels. Daniels privately informs Langdon that Mary Page did not kill Pollock and that if Mary is in danger of going to the electric chair he will tell all he knows of the case.

important. We must work quickly. There isn't a moment to lose." "I'll have them here, sir, don't you fear." And, snatching up his hat, Brennan set off down the corridor at a brisk trot, the waiter staring after him and nodding with pleasure at being able to comprehend the orders that the lawyer had given. "They can prove all I say, sir," he said to Langdon. "I hope it will help. Shall you put me on the stand at once?" "Yes," said Langdon; "I'm going to call you the first thing. You mustn't be nervous about it, though. It's not really such an ordeal as it sounds." "I shan't be nervous, sir," said the waiter, but his face did pale a little when he saw the crowded room and the judge. He acted like a man who had never been in a court-room before. He took the oath firmly, however, and his voice, though a bit shaky, was

The witness wiped his brow, and glanced down at the spectators, as if looking for the sympathetic face of his wife. In his excitement, and because the next question came so fast, he did not have a chance to see her. "Watson, you say you saw Mr. Pollock after the theatre—where?" "I had been to the show, sir, and was coming out when I saw Mr. Pollock just ahead of me. I thought he was looking for his limousine. I saw it and hurried up, intending to tell him where it was, when he caught sight of it himself. I was just behind him, therefore, when he stepped into it." "Was there anyone in the automobile?" "Yes." "Could you see them?" Langdon was overjoyed at the ready answers he was receiving. If he had trained this man for a couple of days he could have asked for better results. "No. I could see anyone as somebody opened the door for Mr. Pollock, and I heard a voice say, 'It's all right, chief. It's a chink.' "Then the engine made such a noise I couldn't hear anymore. You know how those machines do down out everything sometimes, sir." "Had you ever heard the voice before?" "I couldn't say, sir. I didn't notice." The bailiff came and whispered a word in Langdon's ear, handing him at the same time a slip of paper. On it was scrawled: "Pollock's chauffeur, Carter, is in court. You can call him right away. I'll have the other here in a jiffy, Brennan." With a smile of relief Langdon turned back to his witness. "Was that the last time you saw Mr. Pollock?" "Yes, sir." "That is all, thank you, Mr. Watson." And as the waiter stepped down with a smile on his face, Langdon said clearly: "Call Frank Carter." There was a stir through the courtroom, and some commotion as the chauffeur got to his feet in confusion, and stared at Langdon. "D'you mean me?" he asked bluntly; and when the court clerk repeated the name, "Frank Carter," he scrambled over the intervening spectators and went down the room excitedly. He did not seem happy over the prospect of being made so conspicuous. "You were Mr. Pollock's chauffeur, were you not?" asked Langdon, and the man nodded. "Then will you please take the stand?" Still looking somewhat bewildered at the sudden call, Carter took the oath, and Langdon, after the preliminary questions, said slowly, as if seeking to make a definite effect: "Mr. Carter, you drove Mr. Pollock continually, did you not?" "Yes, sir." "Then you must have known most of his friends?" "I did, sir, and some of his enemies," said the chauffeur grimly. "Did you drive the limousine on the night Mr. Pollock was shot?" "I did, sir," the witness answered readily. He saw that he was important now, and, like most of his class, he rather

NEW CLEWS

"If you please, Mr. Langdon, may I speak to you a moment, sir?" The deferential voice halted Philip as he was on his way from court to Mary's cell, and he swung about with the frown of one whose days are made up of unpleasant interruptions by strangers. Langdon had been at the office most of the night looking up certain points of law and his temper was none too good. "Well?" he snapped, and the pallid-faced man with the stooped shoulders winced and drew back a little. "I'm sorry, sir, but I thought I ought to tell you, sir. It's—its' about the guns."

"Now," he said, "what about the guns?"

"Well, it's this way, sir," said James, twirling his hat in his nervous fingers. "I used to be in Mr. Pollock's room a lot, sir, and I knew all his guns. He had a lot of them—they were a sort of fad of his. There was two pairs of re-

"I could see that she hated him," volvers—duelling pistols, he called 'em—but that there gun in court ain't one of those.

"It was his own special one. He had the barrel sawed off extra short so it would fit easy in his pocket. He showed it to me, and said that if anybody ever did for him, they'd have to move quicker than he did. And then, sir, it was his own gun that killed him. Life's a queer thing, ain't it?"

Langdon nodded vaguely, too disappointed at the failure of this new hope to pay much attention to what the man was saying.

"I suppose," he said drily, "you won't mind telling that fact in court, will you?"

He looked sharply at the waiter.

"No, sir."

The waiter hesitated a moment, then dashed and stammered, "I—I wish it might have been one of a pair, sir, if it would have helped the young lady; my wife and I admired her picture so. I took quite an interest, you see, being as how I knew him, sir. I'd seen her photograph in his room, too, and—I know what sort of a man he was. I ain't sorry he's dead, and I'd like to help if I could."

"One night I saw him grab her by the arm and I could see that she hated him and that he was makin' her life miserable by his attentions."

"I saw her that night, Mr. Pollock gimme a pass, and afterwards I saw him."

He broke off abruptly, then leaned forward staring up at Langdon, the life-long servility of the man who serves falling from him for a minute as he said sharply:

"Mr. Langdon, Mr. Pollock had a fight with somebody over the telephone at the club that night, and he didn't go to the Hotel Republic alone!"

"What?" Philip's exclamation was shrill in its excitement but before he could ask any questions that rushed to his lips, the bailiff rapped at the door, announcing that His Honor was ready to re-open court.

With a shrug of impatience Langdon gathered up the papers he had hung upon the table.

"I shall have to put you on the stand, and ask the questions I would like to ask now," he said to the waiter. "You don't mind, I suppose?"

There was a note of anxiety in his voice.

"That is what I am here for, sir," said the little man with a calmness that was not without dignity. "My wife is in the court, sir, waiting to hear me."

He spoke rather proudly; the attitude of a waiter seemed suddenly to leave him.

He was like a soldier who has hesitated, and then, having made up his mind to fight, goes invincibly to battle.

Langdon smiled, and clapped him on the shoulder in a friendly fashion that clear as he answered Langdon's questions.

His name, he said, was James Watson. He was forty-three years old and was employed as a waiter at the Criterion Club.

"You see, sir," he went on confidentially, "there is not enough work in the dining-room to keep us busy except at meal times. They keep one or two men on duty on account of orders for drinks, but the rest of us serve only at breakfast, luncheon and dinner. That leaves us some free time and we mostly have one or two of the gentlemen who live at the Club to look after. I was man for Mr. Pollock. That is, I looked after his clothes and attended to his wants in the way of valeting."

"Watson, when was the last time you saw Mr. Pollock?"

"After the theatre, sir, on the night when he was—when he died."

He uttered the last phrase almost in a whisper, and there was the awe in his voice of the uneducated at the mention of death.

"Did he dine at the club?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did he seem uneasy about anything?"

Langdon was gaining confidence in this unheeded witness.

"Well, he had been drinking pretty heavily, and he was always ugly, if I may say so, sir, when he had been drinking. Maybe I ought not to tell that, though," the witness added, nervously putting his hand to his mouth. "He seemed excited, but I thought it was probably about the performance, sir."

"Did he say anything about carrying a gun that night? Think now, before you reply."

"No, sir," the waiter answered without the slightest hesitation. "But he swore when he came home that afternoon, sir, because his pet particular revolver had been taken away from him."

"I ought not to tell that, though,"

clear as he answered Langdon's questions.

"Did he seem uneasy about anything?"

Langdon was gaining confidence in this unheeded witness.

"Well, he had been drinking pretty heavily, and he was always ugly, if I may say so, sir, when he had been drinking. Maybe I ought not to tell that, though," the witness added, nervously putting his hand to his mouth. "He seemed excited, but I thought it was probably about the performance, sir."

"Did he say anything about carrying a gun that night? Think now, before you reply."

"No, sir," the waiter answered without the slightest hesitation. "But he swore when he came home that afternoon, sir, because his pet particular revolver had been taken away from him."

"Did he tell you where or how he lost it?"

"No, sir, he did not. There was no reason why he should, sir, for I was only his servant."

"Was it one of a pair of revolvers?"

"No, sir. It was one he had had fixed especially to carry, sir."

"Watson, did Mr. Pollock telephone to anyone before or after dinner, that you know of?"

"Yes, sir. He went direct to the phone booth when he came in, and talked for a long time. He seemed very angry, and suddenly he shouted, 'Dash you, you'll do as I say or by—I'll send you up. I've got the goods on you.' "Then he seemed to realize that somebody might hear, and lowered his voice. There was another call for him while he was eating and he went out, and answered it. He seemed angry at first, then pleased. He was in a much better temper when he came back."

"I ought not to tell that, though,"

clear as he answered Langdon's questions.

His name, he said, was James Watson. He was forty-three years old and was employed as a waiter at the Criterion Club.

"You see, sir," he went on confidentially, "there is not enough work in the dining-room to keep us busy except at meal times. They keep one or two men on duty on account of orders for drinks, but the rest of us serve only at breakfast, luncheon and dinner. That leaves us some free time and we mostly have one or two of the gentlemen who live at the Club to look after. I was man for Mr. Pollock. That is, I looked after his clothes and attended to his wants in the way of valeting."

"Watson, when was the last time you saw Mr. Pollock?"

"After the theatre, sir, on the night when he was—when he died."

He uttered the last phrase almost in a whisper, and there was the awe in his voice of the uneducated at the mention of death.

"Did he dine at the club?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did he seem uneasy about anything?"

Langdon was gaining confidence in this unheeded witness.

"Well, he had been drinking pretty heavily, and he was always ugly, if I may say so, sir, when he had been drinking. Maybe I ought not to tell that, though," the witness added, nervously putting his hand to his mouth. "He seemed excited, but I thought it was probably about the performance, sir."

He seemed angry at first, then pleased. He was in a much better temper when he came back."

"Oh, no—there was Shale. I thought you meant somebody else." "Who is Shale?" "Well, he's a sort of a pal of the chief's—that is, he used to be. I dunno exactly how to describe him. He and Mr. Pollock were in on some deals together, and when the chief wanted anything special done, he alias sent Shale. Folks called Shale 'Jim's jackal.' "Mr. Pollock seemed to think a lot of him, though, and took him around a good bit. When he was good humored, he used to say he took Shale along because he knew what he was up to when he was with him." "When did this man Shale join Mr. Pollock?" "After the show, or, rather, during it. I had been off to get a snifter, and when I came back Shale was sittin' in the car smokin'." "I'm waitin' for Jim," he says; and I says, 'Go as far as you like.' So he gave me a cigar, and we sat there smokin' till the show was over and Mr. Pollock came out." "Was Mr. Pollock surprised to see this man in the machine?" "No. He was used to it. He seemed to have been expectin' him. I saw him looking about in the crowd as if he was huntin' someone, and when he saw Shale in the car he looked relieved." "Did you drive direct to the Hotel Republic?" "Yes, sir, we did." "And Mr. Shale went in with Mr. Pollock?" "Oh, no, sir. As soon as the car stopped he went off down the street and Mr. Pollock went into the hotel alone." There was no doubt that both these unexpected witnesses had made a good impression. The district attorney was not pleased; but Langdon, happy in the knowledge that the terrible ordeal for Mary Page was drawing to an end, left the courtroom that day feeling younger and full of power. Soon—soon— But he hardly dared to dream his wonderful dream. [To be continued.]

Airedale Terriers.

Here is the case of a dog made to order for a very definite purpose and meeting all the specifications. The Airedale as a breed is only a little over half a century old. Yorkshire was his birthplace. As to the work that the new dog was expected to do, there were foxes and badgers in the hills, otters in the streams and hares in the fields and woods. This meant that the all around dog must have courage, a keen nose, strength of legs and jaw and must be equally at home in the water and on land. The breed found its way to this country in the middle eighties and soon caught on among the fanciers despite the cry that no terrier should run above twenty pounds. Its habit of working for a living has kept the Airedale from becoming too much the top of the shows and has given him many opportunities to show his worth on the farm and in hunting. He has the terrier willingness to tackle anything without regard to size or teeth. One thing the Airedale demands is room. For that reason he is not an ideal house dog. He is at his best in the country with plenty of elbow room and work enough to keep him interested in life—Outing.

Distant Thunder.

If we count the seconds that elapse between our seeing a flash of lightning and our hearing the thunder we can tell how far off the thunderstorm is. As light travels 186,000 miles a second, we may for all practical purposes regard ourselves as seeing the lightning the instant it flashes. But sound travels only 1,087 feet a second. If, then, we multiply 1,087 by the number of seconds that elapse after the flash before we hear the thunder we get the distance that lies between us and the storm. If we count five seconds the flash is a mile away. As a rule, we do not hear the thunder at all if the storm is more than from twelve to fifteen miles away from us. But the rule has exceptions. In Symons' Meteorological Magazine Mr. Harold Wilson reports that last August he saw two flashes of lightning in the west northwest of England and only heard the thunder after intervals of 115 and 112 seconds respectively. He calculates that the first flash occurred 24.4 miles and the second flash 23.8 miles away. Professor Alexander S. Herschel, it is said, heard the thunder that followed a flash of lightning forty-four miles from where he was.

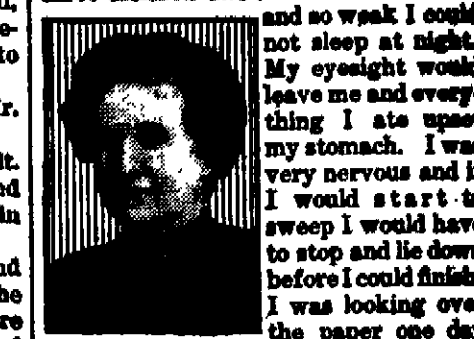

Historic Spelling.

There is a sentiment against simplified spelling because it tends to destroy the historical continuity of the English language, but this claim is answered by the assertion that the present spelling very materially infringes upon former methods. Upon this point a correspondent of the New York Times says: We have only to go back a very short way in order to see the modern upstart character of what is called historical spelling. We now write "pleasure," "measure" and "feather," but not very long ago those words were spelled "plesure," "mesure," "fether." Again, "tong" and "yung," as spelled by Spenser, have a more historical aspect than "tongue" and "young." Why write "girdle" when the old spelling was "girde"? The only answer to this argument and similar ones is that our immediate ancestors learned how to spell better than our remote ancestors, which is only claiming that the makers of the words left their spelling to succeeding generations, which is absurd. There is abundant proof that our ancestors were better spellers than the succeeding generations.—Ohio State Journal.

WOMAN SO WEAK COULD NOT SLEEP

Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

North Oxford, Mass.—"I had lost three children and I was all run down and so weak I could not sleep at night. My eyesight would leave me and everything I ate upset my stomach. I was very nervous and if I would start to sleep I would have to stop and lie down before I could finish. I was looking over the paper one day and read of a woman who felt as I did and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I took it too. Now I am proud to tell you I am feeling fine and have given birth to a boy baby. He is my 'Pinkham' baby. I keep a bottle of Compound in my house always."—Mrs. PETER MARCO, Box 54, North Oxford, Mass.

Sleeplessness, indigestion, weakness, and nervousness are symptoms which indicate a lowered vitality of the female organism, and the tonic, strengthening properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs, combined in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, are just what is needed by every woman who is in Mrs. Marco's condition.

For free advice in regard to any annoying symptom write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

IF BACKACHE OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat and take a glass of Salts to flush out Kidneys—Drink plenty water.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush out the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Ladies! Try this! Darkens beautifully and nobody can tell—Brings back its gloss and youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation impervious by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet article requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

One was badly stunned and help had to be secured to get it from the barn. The building was destroyed, with the contents, including a large amount of grain and all the farming implements. ATTEMPT MADE ON DIPLOMAT'S LIFE NOT SUCCESSFUL
Berlin, May 29.—By Wireless to Sayville.—An unsuccessful attempt to assassinate the Austro-Hungarian minister to Persia is reported in a Constantinople dispatch to the Overseas News Agency today. "Djemel Bey," continues the dispatch, "who has been for some time in the service of Russia wore the uniform of a cosack when he attempted the assassination. An attempt to arrest Djemel Bey, made by a Persian soldier was interfered with by a Russian officer. The Persian government has instituted an investigation into the affair."

ILLEGAL
SALARIES DRAWN BY OHIO COMMON PLEAS JUDGES IS ALLEGATION

In Suit Brought in Henry County to Determine Validity of the Salary Statute.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]
Napoleon, O., May 29.—Contending that the common pleas judges in Ohio are drawing illegal salaries, Attorney Otto W. Hess of this city, has begun a suit in the Henry county court to determine the validity of the statute under which they draw their pay.

Hess holds that as the judges are designated state officers by the constitution they are only entitled to that part of the salary paid by the state and that the statute giving them additional salaries from the counties in which they reside is in contravention of the Ohio and the United States constitution. Each judge receives $3,000 a year from the state and an additional $25 for each thousand of population from his county up to $3,000 for such addition.

Hess, as a taxpayer, seeks to enjoin the Henry county auditor from issuing, and the treasurer from paying warrants calling for the county's share of Judge Orville Smith's salary, amounting to $625 a year. The suit will be given an early hearing.

KENNEDY BAND WILL ASSIST OLD VETS

The management of the Con T. Kennedy Shows upon learning that the old veterans had not secured a band for their parade on Decoration Day consulted with the musical director of the carnival band, Prof. A. U. Belick, and that gentleman volunteered to have his splendid organization of musicians furnish the music for the old war heroes.

It is a problem each year on Decoration Day to secure funds for a band and the action of the management of the Kennedy Shows is certainly more than appreciated. The band boys are engaged at the show until late at night and their willingness to turn out early in the morning shows a spirit of patriotism that is commendable. The band is an excellent organization of musicians and their music will be greatly enjoyed.

Local Y. M. C. A. Pioneer in City In Teaching English to Men of Foreign Birth

The years 1914 and 1915 mark the high water point in the records of the Y. M. C. A. in educational work. Through the co-operation of the Federation of Women's Clubs and the American Bottle Works the Association was able to establish schools outside of the building. One hundred and twenty-eight men, mostly under 25 years of age took advantage of this opportunity, taught by two Danish students. This work has developed a number of these students and has interested them in social service work. Many of the leaders among the organization of men of foreign birth in the city speak with pride of the days when they first came to the Association speaking very few English words. This work has much to do with teaching these men who are new to American ideals and customs in getting the proper view and perspective of things American. It also gives an opportunity to learn to distinguish the best from the worst in our civilization. The Association has never interfered with the religious beliefs of these men except to offer counsel when they came to a point in their education where they made their own inquiries.

GERMS ARE DANGEROUS

Do not overlook the importance of having your home entirely free from disease germs which lurk in many places even in the most modern homes and become dangerous to good health. Every home should have a bottle of hyclorite antiseptic ready for instant use, as there is nothing so effective when applied to burns, scratches or bruises, because hyclorite instantly kills the germs that infect the wound or bruise.

For acid mouths, for cleansing the crevices as well as the surfaces of the teeth hyclorite is positively necessary. Rinse the mouth and gargle with a few drops of hyclorite and you will escape throat troubles and other germ diseases and the mouth and breath will be clean and sweet.

Hyclorite is used extensively in hospitals, by dentists and physicians and sold by druggists most everywhere. It is the one thoroughly reliable antiseptic and should be in every home.

FRAUD

ALLIED IN MERGER OF HOME GUARDS OF AMERICA AND A. I. U.

Suit Filed Claims Secret Arrangement was Made for Large Increases in Salaries.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Columbus, May 29.—Fraud in the merger last summer of the Home Guards of America with the American Insurance Union is charged in a suit which today was appealed to the Supreme Court by William A. Marker, a member of the Home Guards.

According to Marker's charges, both organizations are fraternal beneficiary societies. He claims that in making the merger secret arrangements were entered into by officers of the two bodies whereby officers of the Home Guards were to receive large salaries and do no work.

Marker states George J. Eblan, a leading officer of the Home Guards who received a salary of $4,000 before the merger, was by the terms of the deal, to be given a salary of $6,000 after its consummation although he had no duties whatever to perform in the new organization. Marker seeks to enjoin the transfer of Home Guards funds amounting to $15,000 from the Van Wert Building and Savings company to the treasurer of the American Insurance Union and the exchange of other real estate and property of the Home Guards.

Headquarters of the Home Guards formerly was at Van Wert. The home office of the American Insurance Union is in Columbus.

counties will determine whether to proceed with the work and order engineers to make a preliminary survey. It will be necessary to dredge a part of the South Fork to a width of forty feet and it is estimated that the improvement will cost about $60,000. Should there be a tie vote on the part of the commissioners the matter will then be left to the governor, who will make the decision.

Answer Filed.
In the case of Catherine Lovejoy vs. Henry Lovejoy, the defendant has filed his answer in common pleas court. He admits his marriage to plaintiff on April 8, 1914, at Columbus, but denies each and every other allegation in plaintiff's petition and asks that it be dismissed.

Divorce Petition.
Stephan H. Lashley, Jr., has filed a petition in common pleas court against Eleanor Lashley. The parties were married at Wheeling, W. Va., December 11, 1906, and are the parents of three children, aged 10, 8 and 5 years, all residing with the defendant at Mingo Junction, Jefferson county, O., where the plaintiff is supporting them. In the plaintiff's petition defendant is charged with gross neglect of duty in failure to take the proper care of their home; also that she was guilty of cruelty in conducting a system of fault-finding and making life miserable for him by continually charging plaintiff with running with immoral women and that she was subject to violent outbursts of temper. Plaintiff charges that defendant abandoned him January 26, 1915. He asks that he be granted a divorce and that the children be decreed by the court as may be for their best interests.

SANFORD HENRY FOUND DEAD IN BED BY HIS SON

Returning home from school at noon today, Thomas, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Henry, negro, 62 Hoover street, found his father dead in bed. Coroner W. L. Jackson gave the cause of death as due to neuralgia of the heart. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Mr. Henry who is well known in this city, went to work at the Fitzsimmons restaurant a week ago. He was night cook. This morning he went to bed apparently in the best of health and left instructions to be called at noon. His wife, cook at the Y. W. C. A. was at work and Thomas was told to call his father when he returned from school.

The lad went to the room of his father and after trying to arouse him went to the home of Frank Ramson. "Uncle Frank, my papa is dead," Thomas cried, as he rushed into the Ramson home. Mr. Ramson accompanied the boy to his home and then notified Coroner Jackson.

The deceased was born and reared in Newark and was well known as a chef. He leaves to mourn his death a wife and four children, William, Mrs. Louise Mathews of Cincinnati, Mrs. Ruth Morgan, of Toledo, and Thomas at home.

DISCHARGED

SUPERINTENDENT OF VERMILION SCHOOLS REFUSED BY HIS FORMER WIFE.

And Village Marshal With Posses, Searched for Him to Make Arrest.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)
Vermilion, O., May 29.—A. L. Irey, former superintendent of schools here, acquitted of insanity after a trial at Sandusky last week, following his arrest which grew out of vandalism at the school house, was in this village last night and attempted to see his former wife, but repulsed him.

Mrs. Irey telephoned to Marshal Tischer who tried to find Irey but failed. He learned that a light had been seen in the schoolhouse and went through the building with a posse but failed to find Irey. He says he will arrest him if he can find she repulsed him.

Irey was discharged as school superintendent here a year ago after he wrote love notes to two girl teachers. One of the teachers was ousted. Mrs. Irey was a teacher, too, and held her place and still is teaching. It was her schoolroom that was torn up and a threatening letter left in it several months ago, for which Irey was arrested at Canton.

PLENTY OF RAIN FALLS IN VICINITY

Quite an electrical thunderstorm visited this city and vicinity Sunday morning between 8 and 9 o'clock. There was a hail storm Saturday evening about 8:30 during a heavy downpour of rain. It caught several thousands of downtown shoppers on the street and hundreds of open autos parked about the public square. In spite of the hail storm Saturday night was excessively hot and the humidity was oppressive. Sunday morning's storm cooled the atmosphere and the thermometer did not rise above seventy until after the noon hour. Sunday evening was pleasant and the night was cool. It rained again this morning at short intervals between 4 and 8 o'clock. The weather man promises us fair weather tonight with more showers Tuesday.

COWS KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

For a time the entire water front was threatened, as the fire department is working short handed, many of its members having departed for service in the British army.

RAIN INSURANCE AFFECTED BY WAR.

New York, May 29.—The European war has had a marked effect upon such an apparently unrelated matter as rain insurance in New York City. An organization which will give a musical festival next Sunday afternoon at the Polo grounds called to Lloyd's in London asking the price of a $10,000 policy insuring it against loss by rain on that day. The reply was that the normal cost of such a policy was five per cent, but that "under existing conditions of military stress it undoubtedly would be far beyond this sum."
